The screenshot shows the ExcelFormulabot website. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links for Features, Add-ons, Earn Cash, Pricing, Try it Out, and Login. The main heading reads: "Transform your text instructions into Excel formulas in seconds with the help of AI for free." Below this, it says "Become highly proficient in Excel in seconds. Work faster & smarter." and includes a quote: "Game-changer for Excel" - BGR.com. A green button labeled "Generate free formula!" is present, with a note "No credit card required!". Logos for Excel and Google Sheets are shown. To the right, a laptop graphic displays a text instruction: "Sum of column A when column B contains the word 'marketing' and column C is today's date." Below this, the generated formula is shown: `=SUMIFS(A:A,B,"marketing",C:C,TODAY())`. Another example shows a text instruction: "COUNTIF(D5:D12, >100)" and the formula: `=COUNTIF(D5:D12,">100")`. Below the laptop, it says "Join the 1M+ people working smarter and faster." and lists logos for various companies: Microsoft, Disney, FedEx, Harvard, Accenture, Oracle, Amazon, Zinnov, IBM, Nike, Tesla, and Apple. At the bottom, a section titled "Problem → Formula" states: "Turn your spreadsheet problem into a formula in seconds."
